I. Research Background

- The Hong Kong Design Centre (HKDC) is a professional organization aiming to awareness of the value of design and application of design in the business community. It disseminates design ideas/knowledge through seminars, workshops, conferences, design award competition, and exhibitions.
- HKDC firmly believes innovative design be an integral part of a successful brand. Firms anticipate to invest in brand building activities would like to know the types of design that will contribute more to a successful brand.
- HKDC, together with Asian Centre for Brand Management at the Hong Kong Polytechnic University, conducts the present study to explore the brands most Hong Kong citizens prefer to buy and use and the role of innovative design in these brands.

II. Research Objectives

- To understand the factors important to brand choices
- To identify the brands that most Hong Kong citizens prefer to buy more frequently and think they are good in design.
- To investigate the types of design that Hong Kong consumers based on to assess innovative design brands
- Finally, to find out the brands most Hong Kong citizens would like to recommend to foreign visitors

III. Research Methodology

1. Identifying the brands for the survey
 - Mainly were the winning brands in various “Top Brands Contests” organized by local media or by professional organizations in the past two-three years
 - These brands must be created and managed by Hong Kong based companies
 - 13 product categories were covered
2. Data collection method
 - Street-intercept interviews were employed to collect data during weekdays and weekends from May 7- June 9 2008

III. Research Methodology

3. Target respondents

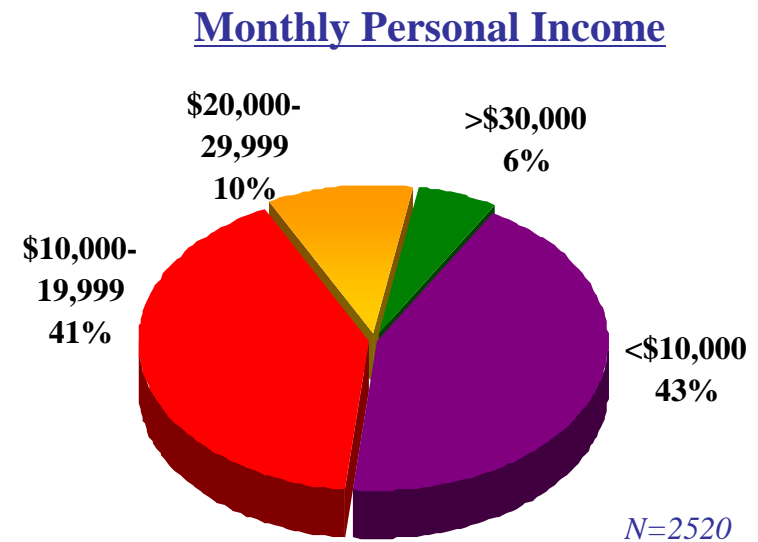

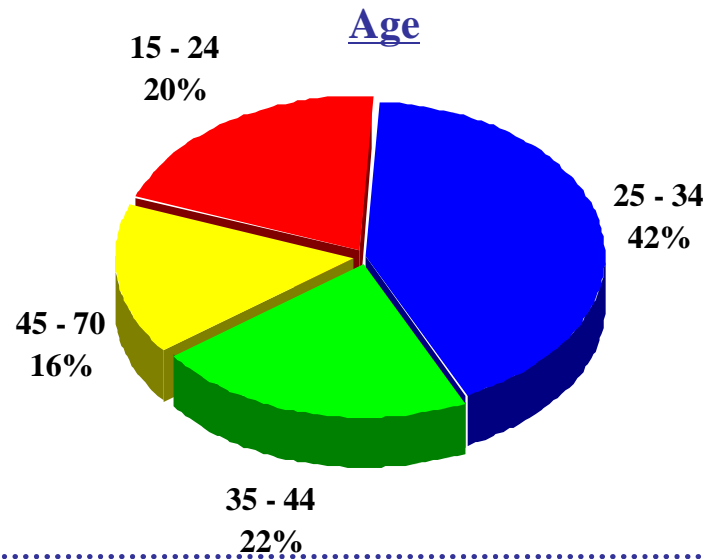

- HK residents aged 15-70
- Respondents were sampled from:
 - Central
 - Causeway Bay
 - Kennedy Town
 - North point
 - Chai Wan
 - Aberdeen
 - Kwun Tong
 - Tsuen Wan
 - Tuen Mun
 - Shatin
 - Taipo
